were completed yesterday, needing only the finishing touches to make them appeal to every eye that passed. From Norfolk County came a pumpkin weighing sixty pounds, and there were many others of almost equal weight. The outdoor space devoted to agricultural implements was filled, and everything was in place. All the space on the implements was filled, and everything was in place. All the space on the Midway is taken up, and yesterday it was discovered that there was not room enough for all the concessions which had been granted. There was only one thing to do to remedy the deficiency, and that was done. A long section of fence surrounding the grounds was taken out, and thus the necessary room was obtained.

The grounds will be better lighted that they were last year. Searchlights will play on the grounds from the roof of the grandstand, and incondescent lamps and thousands of electric bulbs have been placed along the Midway and around the road. cleatric bulbs have been placed along the Midway and around the road. They were tested last hight, and at the pressure of a button every bulb flashed into light. The lighting arrangements were made by Captain William H. Thompson and his son, Ernest G. Thompson. A signal system has been established, so that, at the ringing of a bell, police or ambulance surgeons may be summoned and sect argeons may be summoned and sent any point on the grounds. A hos-ital tent, with two trained nurses and a physician in charge, has been placed in the track circle, opposite the grandstand. The Fire Department has head-quarters next to the grandstand, with a captain and an engine company. They will remain on the grounds night and day until the fate closes. and day until the fair closes

Protection for Visitors.

With the one failure to establish headquarters for the police, nothing has been overlooked for the comfort and entertainment of the public. Every known precautionary measure has been taken. Resthouses for men and women bave been refurnished and made more comfortable than they were last year. Pinkerton men, the local last year. Pinkerton men, the local constabulary and thirty additional men sworn in for the purpose by Judge R. Carter Scott, of the Henrico County Carter Scott, of the Henrico County Circuit Court, will patrol the grounds to protect the public as far as they can from the depredations of "dips," some of whom have already arrived for the first pickings. If the people will heed the warning of the police, they will leave at home all their valuables and take only the money they will actually need.

will actually need. In addition to the private booths, there are several church booths on the grounds, all ready to begin work this morning. From some propaganda will be served with meals.

The grounds will be opened promptly at 9 o'clock this morning, and they will not be closed again until midnlight, when the last of the night shows will be over and the visitors spent.

Channel is Free of Rocks.

The channel is front of the Clyde Wharf, and would require little or no blasting of rock. The curve in the river at this point acts as a natural dredge, and keeps the channel free of debris.

Few cities in the country owning municipal wharves throw them open to the public free of all charges, but this is done in Richmond, and will tend to popularize this port with owners, and will decrease freight tolls to a large extent. A barge unloading at the City Wharf at the present time would have netted the city about $150 had it come in
